Webinar Series Organizer: Ahmad Bayiz Ahmad, PhD

As publication pressures grow, gaining insights into the writing and publication process is essential knowledge that can add value to your career. Publishing in leading international journals also helps your employer (i.e., University of Raparin) to improve its standing in national and international rankings. At this Academic Writing and Publishing webinar series, participants will learn about the craft of writing and publishing. Participants will engage with scholars having published papers in leading international peer reviewed journals. Speakers will discuss aspects of the writing, review and publication process that are not normally taught in graduate (Masters & PhD) programmes. More specifically, the webinar series aims to help University of Raparin academics gain insights

Background

Session 6: Titles and Abstracts. 1st Presenter: Oaraman Mohammed Hasan PhD Candidate, University of Waikato-New Zealand Lecturer, University of Raparin & University of Waikato 2nd Presenter: Ahmad Bayiz Ahmad PhD (Beihang University)

Titles and abstracts are a critical part of any manuscript. They are the first thing a reader will see, and often the only thing! It is important that you are able to sell your ideas, so how do you do this? What makes for a good title? What should an abstract convey?

2nd Presenter: Andrew R. Timming PhD (Cambridge University) Professor, University of Western Australia, Australia If a reader gets past the title and abstract likely next they will read the introduction and conclusion. Writing impactful introductions and conclusions is critical

Session 8: Research Design and Method

Assistant Professor, American University of Raas Al-Khaimah, UAE 2nd Presenter: Russel Hassan, PhD (State University of New York)

Associate Professor: Ohio State University, USA Co-editor: International Public Management Journal Research Design/Methods section is, inter alia, one of the most important sections in a research paper. So, what research design will you employ and why? What method is suitable for your research? In this session the presenter will review different research designs/methods that are commonly used in social science (qualitative and quantitative). The presenter will also discuss the significance of the methods section in research papers.
